Taxable equivalent yields
Taxable-equivalent yields represent the amount of return you would need in a taxable investment to earn an after-tax return equal to that of a tax-exempt investment. The following chart shows the approximate taxable yields that are equivalent to tax-exempt yields under federal taxes for individuals in the 28% federal tax bracket.

2 The taxable equivalent yields and taxable equivalent estimated current returns are for illustrative purposes only, apply only to the related tax-exempt yield/estimated current returns for individuals that is equivalent to the related tax-exempt yield/estimated current returns under federal taxes using the published federal tax rates scheduled to be in effect in 2013. This information is based on present law as of the date of publication and does not account for any proposed changes in tax rates. This information illustrates approximately what you would have to earn on taxable investments to equal the tax-exempt estimated current return if you are in the 28% federal income tax bracket. This information does not account for limitations on deductions, the alternative minimum tax or taxes other than federal personal income tax.

4 The amount is based on estimated cash flows per Unit and that the amount will vary with changes in expenses, interest rates and maturity, call or sale of bonds.

4 The bonds in the portfolio have credit ratings of at least A- by Standard & Poor's or at least A3 by Moody's as of the deposit date.

5 Income may be subject to state or local taxes. Please consult your tax advisor for further information.

6 Federal tax rates and state tax rates may vary. Please consult your financial advisor for further information.

Diversification does not guarantee a profit or eliminate a risk of loss.

Municipals may realize gains, and shareholders will incur a tax liability from time to time. Income from the portfolios that invest in them are subject to state and local taxes. Generally, the longer the maturity of the security, the greater is the effect on its value when rates change.

1 These estimates are calculated as of the close of business on the deposit date and will vary thereafter. Estimated current return shows the estimated interest distributions you are scheduled to receive each year divided by the unit price. Estimated long term return shows the estimated return over the estimated life of the trust. We base this estimate on an average of the bond yields over their estimated life. This estimate also reflects the sales charge and estimated expenses. The average yield for the portfolio is derived by weighting each bond’s yield by its value and estimated life. Unlike estimated current return, estimated long term return accounts for maturities, discounts and premiums of the bonds. These estimates show a comparison rather than a prediction of returns. No return calculation can predict your actual return. Your actual return may vary from these estimates. Current estimates are available at www.invesco.com/unittrust.

2 The taxable equivalent yields and taxable equivalent estimated current returns are for illustrative purposes only, apply only to the related tax-exempt yield/estimated current returns for individuals that is equivalent to the related tax-exempt yield/estimated current returns under federal taxes using the published federal tax rates scheduled to be in effect in 2013. Risk considerations
There is no assurance that a unit investment trust will achieve its investment objective. An investment in this unit trust is subject to market risk, which is the possibility that the market values of securities owned by the trust will decline and that the value of trust units may therefore be less than what you paid for them.

An investment in a trust should be made with an understanding of the risks associated therewith, such as the inability of the issuer or an insurer to pay the principal and interest. An investment in a trust may be subject to interest rate risk. If interest rates rise, the value of the bonds in a trust may decline and if interest rates decline the value of the bonds may increase. Also, the longer the period to maturity, the greater the sensitivity to interest rate changes tends to be.

A credit rating is an assessment provided by a nationally recognized statistical rating organization (NRSRO) of the creditworthiness of an issuer with respect to debt obligations, including specific securities, money market instruments or other debts. Ratings are measured on a scale that generally ranges from AAA/Aaa (highest) to D/C (lowest); ratings are subject to change without notice. For more information on Standard and Poor's rating methodology, please visit www.standardandpoors.com and select "Understanding Ratings" under Rating Resources on the homepage or Moody's at www.moodys.com and select "Rating Methodologies" under Research and Ratings on the homepage.
