Invesco launches two active fixed income ETFs

London, 8 June 2026 – Invesco is expanding its active ETF range with the launch of two funds that will provide differentiated exposure to investment-grade corporate bond markets. The Invesco EUR IG Corporate Bond Active UCITS ETF and Invesco EUR IG Corporate Bond Short Duration Active UCITS ETF will be managed by Invesco Fixed Income’s UK-based team (“IFI Europe”) of highly experienced fundamental portfolio managers, supported by deep, global research resources. The two ETFs follow similar strategies with the latter targeting a shorter range of maturities.

“Invesco has a strong active franchise globally, spanning from quantitative factor-based strategies to fundamental bottom-up approaches”, said Gary Buxton, Head of EMEA Product at Invesco, “and we have been managing active ETFs for more than a decade. The active ETF market in Europe has been growing rapidly in recent years, and we see this trend accelerating as investors seek further opportunities to add alpha to their portfolios. We expect this growth to be driven by both existing ETF investors and those familiar with active strategies who want the additional benefits of the ETF structure.”

Actively managed UCITS ETFs have more than doubled in size since the end of 2024, with over $110 billion in assets under management in over 390 products at the end of April 2026. Analysis from Invesco highlights particularly strong growth trends in active ETFs year to date with an 8.4% increase due to net new assets, compared to a 4.6% growth rate in passive ETFs over the same time.

For each of the new Invesco ETFs, the IFI Europe portfolio managers will select securities based on a combination of macroeconomic factors, fundamental credit research, single-security analysis and risk management considerations. Tom Hemmant, Portfolio Manager at Invesco, explained: “The integration of macroeconomic and bottom-up credit research feeds into our asset allocation decisions. We would expect to take active allocations mainly in terms of security selection, sector allocation, credit quality and yield curve positioning, while managing duration in a range relative to the respective benchmarks. We are following a very similar strategy to one we have been managing for over 20 years but with somewhat tighter constraints to accommodate the liquidity demands of ETFs.”

As fundamental active strategies, the ETFs do not track an index and are not constrained by a benchmark. Investors looking for a relevant comparator for performance purposes may use the Bloomberg Euro Corporate Index for the broad fund, and the Bloomberg Euro Corporate Bond 1-5 Year Index for the short duration fund. Both ETFs are classified as Article 8 funds under SFDR.

Matthew Tagliani, Head of EMEA ETF Product at Invesco, said: “As the European active ETF market has grown, so too has investor appetite for strategies that are more differentiated from ETFs’ traditional passive origins. Quantitative equity strategies – such as our own Enhanced range of core beta ETFs – were the first to gain traction and still represent the largest pools of assets. Then came ETFs linked to more complex asset classes, like CLOs, where a specialist manager can add value through security selection. We see the growing demand for ETFs linked to traditional fundamental active strategies as the next step in this evolution and an exciting area of future growth.”

With these latest launches, Invesco now offers 49 fixed income UCITS ETFs, with an expanding range targeting Euro-based asset classes. The current offering includes beta exposures to Euro government bonds and investment grade (IG) corporate bond markets, as well as exposures to more niche segments such as EUR AT1 CoCos and AAA-rated CLOs. The firm also offers smart beta strategies, such as those using factors to deliver higher yields or improved total returns versus the benchmark. And with these latest launches, investors can choose an actively managed approach to EUR IG corporate bonds.

Investment Risks

For complete information on risks, refer to the legal documents.

The value of investments, and any income from them, will fluctuate. This may partly be the result of changes in exchange rates. Investors may not get back the full amount invested.

This Fund may use derivatives for investment purposes. The use of such complex instruments may impact the magnitude and frequency of the fluctuations in the value of the Fund. The creditworthiness of the debt the Fund is exposed to may weaken and result in fluctuations in the value of the Fund. There is no guarantee the issuers of debt will repay the interest and capital on the redemption date. The risk is higher when the Fund is exposed to high yield debt securities. Changes in interest rates will result in fluctuations in the value of the Fund. This Fund invests in contingent convertible bonds, a type of corporate debt security that may be converted into equity or forced to suffer a write down of principal upon the occurrence of a pre-determined event. If this occurs, the Fund could suffer losses. Other notable risks of these bonds include liquidity and default risk. The Fund may be exposed to the risk of the borrower defaulting on its obligation to return the securities at the end of the loan period and of being unable to sell the collateral provided to it if the borrower defaults. The Fund intends to invest in securities of issuers that manage their ESG exposures better relative to their peers. This may affect the Fund's exposure to certain issuers and cause the Fund to forego certain investment opportunities. The Fund may perform differently to other funds, including underperforming other funds that do not seek to invest in securities of issuers based on their ESG ratings. It may be difficult for the Fund to buy or sell certain instruments in stressed market conditions. Consequently, the price obtained when selling such instruments may be lower than under normal market conditions.
