

Published December 22, 2020

Invesco joins Transition Pathways Initiative (TPI)

Invesco is officially a supporter of the Transition Pathway Initiative (TPI), a global, asset-owner led initiative which assesses companies' preparedness for the transition to a low carbon economy. Launched in 2017, the TPI tool is rapidly becoming the go-to corporate climate action benchmark. TPI provides robust, independent research which empowers investors to assess the alignment of their portfolios with the goals of the Paris Agreement and to drive real world emission reductions through our actions. Ninety investors globally have pledged support for the TPI as of December 2020, representing over $23.3 trillion combined Assets under Management and Advice. They have committed to using the tool and its data in a range of ways, including to inform their investment research, in engagement with companies and in tracking managers' holdings. Visit the Transition Pathway Initiative website to learn more.