

Melanie Oakie

Advanced Business Analyst,
Infrastructure Stability
Charlottetown, Canada
Pronouns: she/her

Why is it important to have allies in the workplace?

“Having allies in the workplace fosters a safe and open environment for people to express themselves without fear of discrimination or criticism. Safe spaces allow us to engage in important communication about a diverse and wide-reaching set of issues that affect us all, which leads understanding, which leads to acceptance. Everyone deserves to feel safe and accepted regardless of how they identify.”