

CollegeBound 529

Helping your grandchildren save for a higher education

A college degree is increasingly necessary for career success in today's global economy. There are also benefits that can enhance your grandchild's personal and social life as well as his or her professional life.

Impact of a college education on your grandchild's quality of life

Personal¹

- Increased overall happiness
- Greater life experience
- Lower divorce rates
- Improved quality of life for their future family

Social²

- Greater community involvement
- Increased status
- More hobbies and leisure time

Professional³

- Higher salaries
- Higher level job status
- Higher savings levels

A thoughtful college savings strategy can help your grandchild graduate from college with a bright future.

But just how expensive is a grandchild's college education?

Has it been a while since you've looked at college costs? Get ready for some campus sticker shock:

- A grandchild's four years at a public, in-state university can average over $80,000.⁴
- Roughly 70% of graduating college seniors carry student loan debt.⁵
- The average debt load per student is over $30,000, with that figure increasing annually.⁵

You can help your grandchild graduate with less debt by saving today for their college tuition. And, contributing to a 529 plan is one way you can start saving for college.

The more money saved for a college education could mean less debt at graduation

For illustrative purposes only

What is a 529 plan?

A 529 plan is a tax-advantaged savings plan that allows you to contribute toward a grandchild's education. Your earnings are free from federal income tax and, in most cases, state income tax, if used to pay for qualified education expenses. Please note, earnings on non-qualified withdrawals may be subject to federal income tax and a 10% federal tax penalty, as well as state and local income taxes. Tax and other benefits are contingent on meeting other requirements, and certain withdrawals are subject to federal, state and local taxes.

Your financial professional can help you get started and stay on course with the most appropriate investment choices for your family and your needs.

Why grandparents may find 529 plans attractive

The account owner controls the money until it is ready to be distributed to cover your grandchild's education cost.

If you don't need the income, you might consider opening and funding a 529 plan for grandchildren with your required minimum distributions. With a 529 plan, you retain control of the assets and the benefit of tax-deferred savings.

You have access to diversified investment options, with earnings that are generally exempt from federal income taxes and most state taxes if used to pay for qualified education expenses.

CollegeBound 529 has no minimum initial investment, so you can start small if needed. For estate-planning purposes, grandparents can contribute up to $15,000 annually per grandchild (or beneficiary) with no gift tax. That gift doubles to $30,000 if you are married and file your taxes jointly.

Need to make a larger contribution for estate-planning purposes? You can contribute up to $75,000 ($150,000 if married, filing jointly) at one time, and elect to treat it as a five-year gift with no taxes.⁶

It's never too late to start saving

Your financial advisor can help you get started and stay on course with the most appropriate investment choices for your family and your needs. In addition, your financial advisor can explain implications for taxes and financial aid eligibility, offer guidance about estate planning, and help you maximize the benefits of having a 529 plan such as CollegeBound 529, which is managed by Invesco.

To learn more about starting a CollegeBound 529 account for your grandchild, visit collegebound529.com.

1 Source: Pew Research, "The link between a college education and a lasting marriage," December 2015.

2 Source: Lumina Foundation Report from the University of Maine Margaret Chase Smith Policy Center & School of Economics, University of Maine, "It's Not Just The Money: The Benefits of College Education to Individuals and to Society," by Professor Philip Trostel, October 2015

3 Source: Bureau of Labor Statistics; Earning and unemployment rates by education attainment 2016, Oct. 21, 2017.

4 Source: collegeboard.org, Trends in College Pricing 2018

5 Source: The Institute for College Access & Success, 2018.

6 If the contributor dies during the five-year period, a prorated amount will revert back to the contributor's taxable estate.

NOT FDIC INSURED | MAY LOSE VALUE | NO BANK GUARANTEE

Before you invest, consider whether your or the beneficiary's home state offers any state tax or state other benefits such as financial aid, scholarship funds, and protection from creditors that are only available for investments in that state's qualified tuition program. For more information about CollegeBound 529, contact your financial advisor, call 877 615 4116, or visit www.collegebound529.com to obtain a Program Description, which includes investment objectives, risks, charges, expenses, and other important information; read and consider it carefully before investing. Invesco Distributors, Inc. is the distributor of CollegeBound 529.

An investment in the Portfolios is subject to risks including: investment risks of the Portfolios which are described in the Program Description; the risk (a) of losing money over short or even long periods; (b) of changes to CollegeBound 529, including changes in fees; (c) of federal or state tax law changes; and (d) that contributions to CollegeBound 529 may adversely affect the eligibility of the Beneficiary or the Account Owner for financial aid or other benefits. For a detailed description of the risks associated with CollegeBound 529, and the risks associated with the Portfolios and the Underlying Funds, please refer to the Program Description.

None of the State of Rhode Island, its agencies, Invesco Distributors, Inc., Ascensus College Savings Recordkeeping Services, LLC, nor any of their applicable affiliates provide legal or tax advice. This information is provided for general educational purposes only and is not to be considered legal or tax advice. Investors should consult with their legal or tax advisors for personalized assistance, including information regarding any specific state law requirements.

Note: not all products, materials or services available at all firms. Financial professional, please contact your home office.