Market overview

+ Macro issues that concerned investors in the second quarter carried over into the third quarter. US-China trade conflict worried investors and stifled business investment even as the Federal Reserve cut interest rates by 0.25% in July and September. This environment, combined with evidence of slowing global economic growth, fueled volatility in August. The US Treasury yield curve inverted several times, raising fears of a US recession. As a result, August saw increased risk aversion, with investors crowding into asset classes perceived as safe havens, such as US Treasuries and gold. However, the Fed's accommodative tone provided some support for risk assets. A drone attack on Saudi Arabia's oil fields caused oil prices to spike in September, but prices retreated after the US announced it would tap the national oil reserves to boost supply. Despite increased volatility, US equity markets delivered generally positive results, with the S&P 500 Index returning 1.67%.

Positioning and outlook

+ During the quarter, we took profits in financials and trimmed exposure to energy, thereby reducing the fund's overweights in these sectors. We added to the consumer staples, health care and communication services sectors.

+ At quarter end, the fund's largest relative overweights were in information technology and health care, and the largest underweights were in real estate and utilities.

+ We expect market volatility to continue for the foreseeable future given potential for a slowing global economy, geopolitical tensions and uncertainty about US trade policy. As always, we seek to invest in companies with attractive valuations and strong fundamentals, qualities that we believe will ultimately be reflected in those companies' stock prices.

Performance highlights

+ The fund's Class A shares at net asset value (NAV) underperformed the Russell 1000 Value Index during the quarter. (Please see the investment results table on page 2 for fund and index performance.) Within the Russell 1000 Value Index, utilities and real estate had the strongest performance for the quarter, while energy, health care, materials and industrials posted declines.

Contributors to performance

+ Stock selection in the health care sector was the largest contributor to the fund's relative return, particularly due to CVS Health and Zimmer Biomet. CVS continues to take market share in the retail pharmacy segment, with an opportunity to reduce medical costs and provide a higher service level to customers following its acquisition of Aetna.

+ Stock selection and an underweight in industrials also helped relative performance during the quarter.

+ The fund's allocation to high quality bonds helped absolute and relative performance during the quarter, as these holdings had a positive return that exceeded the benchmark return. Due to investor demand for safety, bond prices generally rose during the quarter as bond yields fell.

Detractors from performance

+ Consumer discretionary was the largest detractor from relative performance, primarily due to weakness in retail and apparel holdings.

+ The fund's underweights in real estate and utilities also detracted from relative return. As interest rates fell during the quarter, these sectors performed well on an absolute and relative basis.

+ An overweight in energy also detracted from relative return with Devon Energy, Royal Dutch Shell and Marathon Oil among the largest detractors. Energy companies remain under pressure as concerns about an oversupply of oil weigh on many companies in the industry.

+ The fund's allocation to convertible bonds detracted from relative performance, as these bonds posted slightly negative returns and underperformed equities for the quarter.

The fund's positioning versus the Russell 1000 Value Index (% underweight/overweight)

The fund's positioning against the index is based on the equity weightings of the fund.

Performance quoted is past performance and cannot guarantee comparable future results; current performance may be lower or higher. Visit invesco.com/performance for the most recent month-end performance. Performance figures reflect reinvested distributions and changes in net asset value (NAV). Investment return and principal value will vary, and you may have a gain or a loss when you sell shares. No contingent deferred sales charge (CDSC) will be imposed on redemptions of Class C shares following one year from the date shares were purchased. Performance shown at NAV does not include applicable CDSC or front-end sales charges, which would have reduced the performance. Class Y shares have no sales charge; therefore, performance is at NAV. Returns less than one year are cumulative; all others are annualized. Fund performance reflects any applicable fee waivers and/or expense reimbursements. Had the adviser not waived fees and/or reimbursed expenses currently or in the past, returns would have been lower. See current prospectus for more information. About risk

Convertible securities may be affected by market interest rates, the risk of issuer default, the value of the underlying stock or the issuer's right to buy back the convertible securities.

An issuer may be unable to meet interest and/or principal payments, thereby causing its instruments to decrease in value and lowering the issuer's credit rating.

Derivatives may be more volatile and less liquid than traditional investments and are subject to market, interest rate, credit, leverage, counterparty and management risks. An investment in a derivative could lose more than the cash amount invested.

The risks of investing in securities of foreign issuers can include fluctuations in foreign currencies, political and economic instability, and foreign taxation issues.

Interest rate risk refers to the risk that bond prices generally fall as interest rates rise and vice versa.

Preferred securities may include provisions that permit the issuer to defer or omit distributions for a certain period of time, and reporting the distribution for tax purposes may be required, even though the income may not have been received. Further, preferred securities may lose substantial value due to the omission or deferment of dividend payments.

A value style of investing is subject to the risk that the valuations never improve or that the returns will trail other styles of investing or the overall stock markets.

The fund is subject to certain other risks. Please see the current prospectus for more information regarding the risks associated with an investment in the fund.
