Additional InformationTraditional/Roth IRA Removal of Excess

- The account owner may be subject to a 6% excise tax penalty, imposed by the IRS, on the amount of the excess each year, until the excess is corrected.
- For timely removals, earnings are included in gross income and if you are under the age 59½ you may be subject to additional tax penalties on the earnings portion.
- For untimely removals, the distribution will be coded according to age on Form 1099-R and you may be subject to the 10% penalty tax if under age 59½.
- Carryover Method: The IRS allows an additional correction method, the carryover method, that allows a taxpayer to treat a prior year excess as a regular contribution in a subsequent year, subject to eligibility requirements in the year in which the contribution is carried over. A distribution will not occur under this method. Contact your tax or financial advisor to determine how to elect the carryover method.

SIMPLE IRA Removal of Excess

- Salary Deferrals - Excess salary deferrals are includible in your gross income in the calendar year of deferral. Income on the excess salary deferrals is includible in your income in the year of withdrawal from the SIMPLE IRA. If you fail to withdraw excess salary deferrals, and any attributable earnings, by the following April 15th (generally), the excess salary deferrals will be taxed the year of deferral and taxed again when distributed. Untimely removal of salary deferrals will be coded on Form 1099-R according to age and you may be subject to the 10% penalty tax (or 25% if distributed within the first 2 years of initial contribution) if under age 59½.

SEP IRA Removal of Excess

- Excess amounts in a SEP IRA may occur if the employer contributes more than the allowable deductible limit or if you make Traditional IRA contributions into your SEP IRA over the allowable limit.
- After tax filing deadline: This distribution will be coded on Form 1099-R according to age and you may be subject to the 10% penalty tax if under age 59½.

SARSEP Removal of Excess

- Excess salary deferrals are includible in your gross income in the calendar year of deferral. Income on the excess salary deferrals is includible in your income in the year of withdrawal from the SARSEP IRA. If you fail to withdraw excess salary deferrals, and any attributable earnings, by the following April 15th (generally), the excess salary deferrals will be taxed the year of deferral and taxed again when distributed. Salary deferrals not removed by the tax filing deadline are considered Traditional IRA contributions and are subject to those limits. Such excess may be subject to the 6% excise tax penalty until removed.
- Salary Deferral after tax filing deadline - This distribution will be coded on Form 1099-R according to age and you may be subject to the 10% penalty tax if under age 59½.
