Market overview

- + Key issues that concerned investors in the second quarter carried over into the third quarter.
- + US-China trade conflict worried investors and stifled business investment even as the Federal Reserve cut interest rates by 0.25% in July and September.
- + The US Treasury yield curve inverted several times, raising fears of a US recession. However, the Fed's accommodative tone provided some support for risk assets.
- + Despite increased volatility, US equity markets delivered generally positive results.

Positioning and outlook

- + Recent central bank actions have supported continued growth by keeping the cost of debt low. The labor market remains healthy with job and wage gains; thus, consumers appear to be fine. However, these are clearly the late innings of the economic cycle and we, therefore, expect only modest growth from here, as well as continued volatility spurred by trade and election headlines.
- + True growth is likely to be scarce and we believe the market will favor companies that can produce growth and compound earnings in spite of the economic cycle.
- + We believe change is the fuel for growth. Thus, we are seeking to identify "share-takers," companies that can gain market share from technology-enabled advantages in their business models and from disruptive shifts in consumer behavior.

Performance highlights

- + The fund's Class A shares at net asset value (NAV) declined for the quarter and underperformed the Russell 1000 Growth Index. (Please see the investment results table on page 2 for fund and index performance.)
- + Relative to the index, the primary drivers of underperformance included stock selection and underweight exposure in information technology, as well as stock selection and an overweight in consumer discretionary.
- + In contrast, stock selection in communication services and financials had strong positive effects on relative return.

Contributors to performance

- + Alphabet reported robust earnings driven by new product releases and very strong results from its cloud storage business. Lower-than-expected capital expenditures also helped results.
- + Lowe's earnings exceeded analyst expectations. Additionally, sentiment toward the home improvement sector generally improved in response to lower mortgage rates and higher housing turnover.
- + Activision Blizzard reported better-than-expected sales and profits driven by its Call of Duty and Hearthstone game titles. The stock also gained momentum from key upcoming catalysts such as the October launch of Call of Duty mobile and the November Blizzcon conference.

Detractors from performance

- + Amazon management guided future profits lower due to increased investment related to the change from 2-day to 1-day guaranteed Prime shipping.
- + Facebook faced increased anti-trust scrutiny, while support for its newly announced Libra cryptocurrency has been slow to materialize.
- + UnitedHealth declined along with the rest of the health care providers & services group due to concerns about potential policy issues such as the "Medicare for All" plank supported by leading Democratic presidential candidates.

Performance quoted is past performance and cannot guarantee comparable future results; current performance may be lower or higher. Visit invesco.com/performance for the most recent month-end performance. Performance figures reflect reinvested distributions and changes in net asset value (NAV). Investment return and principal value will vary, and you may have a gain or a loss when you sell shares. No contingent deferred sales charge (CDSC) will be imposed on redemptions of Class C shares following one year from the date shares were purchased. Performance shown at NAV does not include applicable CDSC or front-end sales charges, which would have reduced the performance. Class Y shares have no sales charge; therefore, performance is at NAV. Returns less than one year are cumulative; all others are annualized. Fund performance reflects any applicable fee waivers and/or expense reimbursements. Had the adviser not waived fees and/or reimbursed expenses currently or in the past, returns would have been lower. See current prospectus for more information. Index returns do not reflect any fees, expenses, or sales charges. As the result of a reorganization on May 24, 2019, the returns of the fund for periods on or prior to May 24, 2019 reflect performance of the Oppenheimer predecessor fund. Share class returns will differ from the predecessor fund due to a change in expenses and sales charges.
