Market overview

- The first quarter of 2025 was marked by considerable volatility and economic uncertainty. The year started with positive expectations for the US economy and markets, but sentiment appeared to reverse by mid-February.
- The annualized growth rate for US Gross Domestic Product for 2024 was 2.8%. Unemployment stayed low, but employment data showed signs of softening. The Federal Reserve noted "inflation remains somewhat elevated" and held benchmark interest rates steady, with no cuts expected until mid-2025.
- The US economic policy uncertainty index has been near highs experienced during COVID and the 2008 financial crisis, an indication to us of the unpredictable magnitude, duration and outcome of global trade negotiations.
- We believe companies will provide very conservative guidance during the upcoming earnings season, which could further weigh on market sentiment.

Performance highlights

- The portfolio's Class A units at net asset value (NAV) had a negative return and underperformed the Russell 2000 Growth Index during the quarter. (Please see the investment results table on page 2 for portfolio and index performance.)
- Stock selection in the consumer discretionary, financials, energy, health care, materials and real estate sectors added to relative return, while selection in the industrials, IT, consumer staples and communication services sectors detracted.

Contributors to performance

- Intra-Cellular Therapies develops central nervous system treatments and was acquired by Johnson & Johnson (not a portfolio holding) during the quarter.
- TMX operates Canadian market exchanges for equities, fixed income, derivatives and energy. In our opinion, it has shown stable, defensive growth.
- Root offers property and casualty insurance, which is a stable, defensive industry. The company has secular technology-driven growth opportunities, in our view.
- Prestige Consumer Healthcare produces over-the-counter pharmaceuticals and, in our opinion, has demonstrated stable, defensive growth.

Detractors from performance

- Astera Labs makes re-timers and switches that are paired with NVIDIA (not a portfolio holding) chips to clean up and optimize signals. It was a top contributor for the portfolio in 2024. However, the stock pulled back on concerns about sustainability of artificial intelligence (AI) capital expenditures.
- Freshpet produces fresh, healthy pet food and was a top contributor in 2024. It is a highgrowth, high-valuation stock, which pulled back due to market rotation during the first quarter and concerns about economic growth deceleration.
- BILL develops accounts payable/receivable software for small to mid-sized businesses. It is a high-growth stock that pulled back due to market rotation during the quarter and concerns about spending by small businesses.
- Everus Construction provides construction and maintenance services and has benefited from demand in data center and utility infrastructure. The stock pulled back on concerns about sustainability of AI capital expenditures.

Positioning and outlook

- Before the April 2nd tariff announcement, we had already been adjusting the portfolio to be somewhat more defensive by rotating into companies with lower economic cyclicality and stable business models. We have been reducing exposure and reallocating capital within sectors to mitigate risks of tariff impacts and potentially slower economic growth. We reduced exposure to Al-related stocks, capital markets and cyclicals.
- We foresee increased likelihood of a recession and have further focused on companies exhibiting high quality earnings and greater visibility for revenue.
- At the end of the first quarter, the portfolio's largest absolute weights were in the information technology (IT), health care, industrials, consumer discretionary and financials sectors.
   Relative to the Russell 2000 Index, the portfolio was overweight in IT, consumer discretionary, financials and materials at quarter end, while underweight industrials, health care, communication services, energy and real estate.

The performance quoted is past performance and is not a guarantee of future results. Investment returns and principal value of an investment will fluctuate so that an account owner's units, when redeemed, may be worth more or less than their original cost. Current performance may be higher or lower than the performance data shown. For up-to-date month-end performance information please call 877 615 4116, or visit collegebound529.com. Performance figures reflect reinvested distributions of the underlying security and changes in net asset value (NAV). No contingent deferred sales charge (CDSC) will be imposed on redemptions of Class C units following one year from the date units were purchased. Performance shown at NAV does not include applicable CDSC or front-end sales charges, which would have reduced the performance. Class I units have no sales charge; therefore, performance is at NAV. Returns less than one year are cumulative; all others are annualized. Index returns do not reflect any fees, expenses, or sales charges.

About risk

Risks of the Underlying Holding

The risks of investing in securities of foreign issuers, including emerging markets, can include fluctuations in foreign currencies, political and economic instability, and foreign taxation issues.

Growth stocks tend to be more sensitive to changes in their earnings and can be more volatile.

Investments in real estate related instruments may be affected by economic, legal, or environmental factors that affect property values, rents or occupancies of real estate. Real estate companies, including REITs or similar structures, tend to be small- and mid-cap companies, and their shares may be more volatile and less liquid.

Stocks of small and medium-sized companies tend to be more vulnerable to adverse developments, may be more volatile, and may be illiquid or restricted as to resale.

The portfolio is subject to certain other risks. Please see the current Program Description for more information regarding the risks associated with an investment in the portfolio.

Before you invest, consider whether your or the beneficiary's home state offers any state tax or other state benefits such as financial aid, scholarship funds, and protection from creditors that are only available for investments in that state's qualified tuition program.
