Market overview

- + Key issues that concerned investors in the second quarter carried over into the third quarter.
- + US-China trade conflict worried investors and stifled business investment even as the Federal Reserve cut interest rates by 0.25% in July and September.
- + The US Treasury yield curve inverted several times, raising fears of a US recession. However, the Fed's accommodative tone provided some support for risk assets.
- + Despite increased volatility, US equity markets delivered generally positive results.

Positioning and outlook

- + Recent central bank actions have supported continued growth by keeping the cost of debt low. The labor market remains healthy with job and wage gains; thus, consumers appear to be fine. However, these are clearly the late innings of the economic cycle and we, therefore, expect only modest growth from here, as well as continued volatility spurred by trade and election headlines.
- + True growth is likely to be scarce and we believe the market will favor companies that can produce growth and compound earnings in spite of the economic cycle.
- + We believe change is the fuel for growth. Thus, we are seeking to identify "share-takers," companies that can gain market share from technology-enabled advantages in their business models and from disruptive shifts in consumer behavior.

Performance highlights

- + The fund's Class A shares at net asset value (NAV) posted a gain for the quarter but underperformed the Russell 1000 Growth Index. (Please see the investment results table on page 2 for fund and index performance.)
- + Relative to the index, the primary drivers of underperformance included stock selection and an underweight in the strong performing information technology sector, as well as stock selection and an overweight in the weaker performing consumer discretionary sector.
- + In contrast, stock selection in communication services and financials added to relative return.

Contributors to performance

- + Alphabet reported robust earnings driven by new product releases and very strong results from its cloud storage business. Lower-than-expected capital expenditures also helped results.
- + Lowe's earnings exceeded analyst expectations. Additionally, sentiment toward the home improvement sector generally improved in response to lower mortgage rates and higher housing turnover.
- + Activision Blizzard reported better-than-expected sales and profits driven by its Call of Duty and Hearthstone game titles. The stock also gained momentum from key upcoming catalysts such as the October launch of Call of Duty mobile and the November Blizzcon conference.

Detractors from performance

- + Amazon management guided future profits lower due to increased investment related to the change from 2-day to 1-day guaranteed Prime shipping.
- + Illumina's second quarter revenue fell short of analyst expectations due to unfortunate timing of a delay in population genome sequencing projects, as well as slowing direct-to-consumer sales of products such as 23&Me and Ancestry. However, we remain confident about Illumina's prospect and the megatrend of genome sequencing.
- + Facebook faced increased anti-trust scrutiny, while support for its newly announced Libra cryptocurrency has been slow to materialize.
