529 Plan State Tax Information

The dream of a solid education is a goal for many families. A sound savings and investment plan may help that dream become a reality.

State tax benefits can be an important component when selecting a 529 plan.

529 plans offer advantages such as tax-deferred earnings growth and tax-free qualified withdrawals.<sup>1</sup> In addition, some states offer investors additional state income tax benefits. Tax benefits vary by state, and all information, including expenses, fees and investment options, should be considered before making an investment decision.<sup>1</sup>

Using A 529 Plan for K-12 Costs, Student Loan Repayment and Registered Apprenticeship Programs

As a result of the Tax Cuts and Jobs Act, 529 savings plans aren't just for college expenses anymore. Families with children in grades K-12 can now take federal tax-free withdrawals<sup>1</sup> of up to $10,000 per year to pay for public, private, religious elementary or secondary school tuition. However, whether K-12 tuition will qualify for state tax benefits is still being determined on a state-by-state basis.

Ensuring your money can last from the first day of kindergarten to the last day of college requires a diligent and consistent saving strategy. Otherwise, families may find themselves with a shortage of college funds after using their savings on K-12 expenses.

As a result of the SECURE act, 529 plan holders can now withdraw any remaining savings to put toward their own student loan debt, that of their children or grandchildren. The law includes an aggregate lifetime limit of $10,000 in qualified student loan repayments per 529 plan beneficiary and $10,000 for each of the beneficiary's siblings.

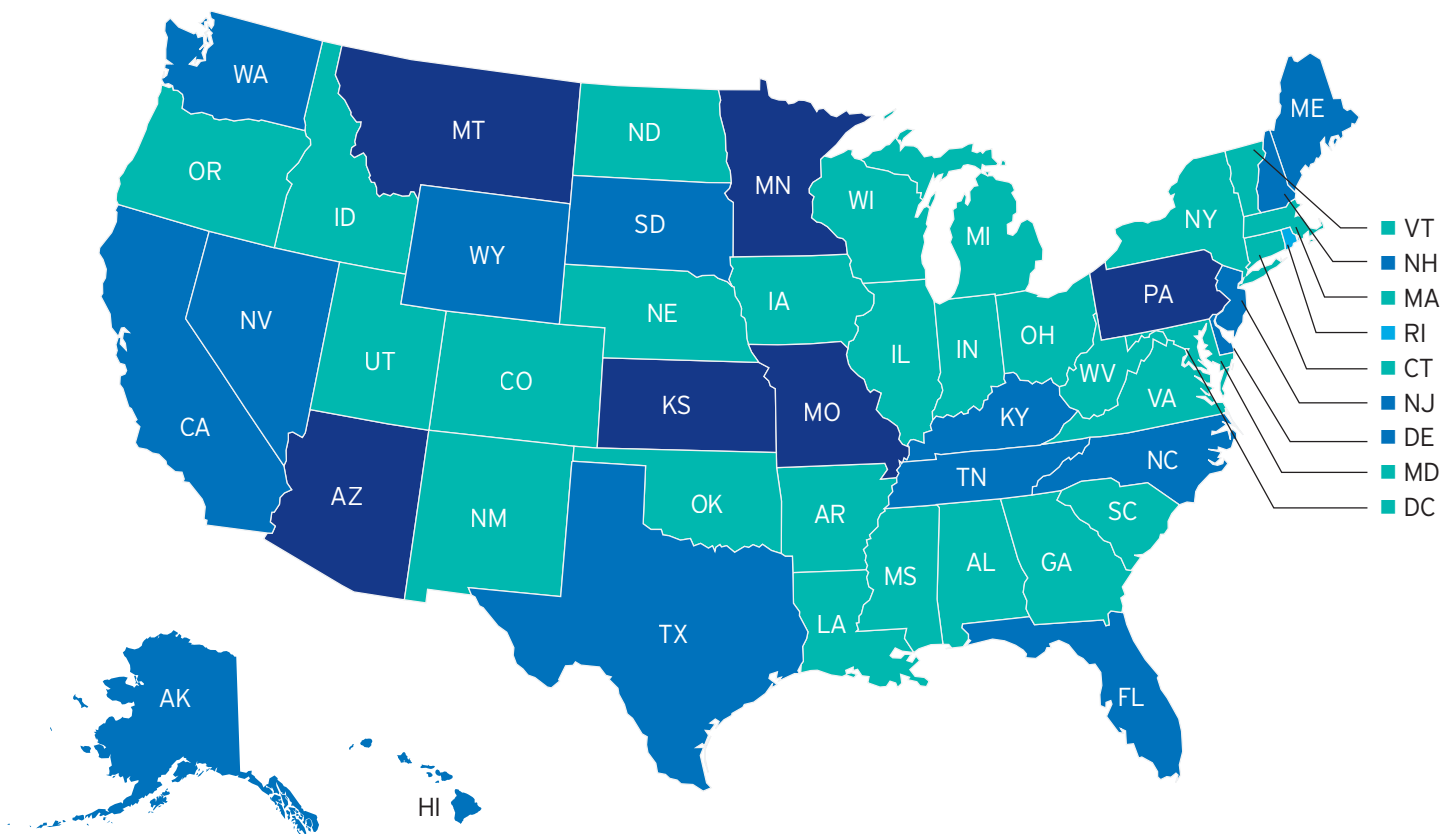

Not attending a traditional college will no longer have an impact on 529 funding as plans can now also be used for expenses related to apprenticeship programs. This also applies to vocational programs and trade schools that are registered with federal Department of Labor. Eligible expenses may include textbooks, fees, equipment and other supplies required for a registered apprenticeship.

Talk to your financial advisor to be sure your saving strategy is tailored for your goals, and consult a tax advisor for specific questions about your federal and state taxes.

<sup>1</sup> Earnings on non-qualified withdrawals may be subject to federal income tax and a 10% federal tax penalty, as well as state and local income taxes. Tax and other benefits are contingent on meeting other requirements, and certain withdrawals are subject to federal, state and local taxes.

- 1 State tax deductions may be subject to recapture on non-qualified withdrawals and/or outbound rollovers in subsequent years. Review the applicable plan disclosure statements. Married couples may need to make their own contributions and/or to their own separate accounts in certain states. Contributions may be reduced by qualified withdrawals during the year for purposes of determining the amount that may be deducted in certain states. Contributions by a spouse may only be deductible if a joint return is filed in certain states. Spouses filing jointly may each need to have income generated up to the amount of the contribution made to claim the maximum (per beneficiary) deduction in certain states. Contributions to an account established after a beneficiary reaches a certain age may not be eligible for a deduction or credit. Contributions made by the account owner, a non-account owner who files a joint return with the account owner, or other non-account owner may be treated differently amongst the states regarding eligibility for deductions or credits and who can apply it to their tax return. The deductibility of 529 plan contributions varies by state and is subject to legislative change. You should consult your tax advisor regarding your specific tax situation.
- 2 Some states allow taxpayers who contribute above the maximum annual tax deduction to carry forward excess contributions to future state income tax returns.
- 3 Assumes joint tax filers in the highest federal and state tax brackets are making $10,000 in 529 plan contributions in 2020 based on having two eligible beneficiaries. Where 2020 contribution limits are unavailable, 2019 limits are shown. Certain states do not have 2020 tax brackets published at the time of this report and in these cases; previous year's rates are being utilized. If you itemize deductions, state tax savings in the year of the contribution may reduce your federal deduction for state taxes in the following year. Due to the Tax Cut and Jobs Act of 2018 (the "Act"), state and local income taxes together with property taxes are now capped at $10,000. As a result, all or a portion of the itemized deduction for federal income tax resulting from 529 plan contributions may be lost thereby increasing your net of federal-state tax savings. State conformity to the Act and potential tax law changes are pending in many states creating tax planning uncertainty.
- 4 Data is as of February 2020. The deductibility of 529 plan contributions varies by state and is subject to legislative change without notice. You should consult your tax advisor regarding you specific tax situation.
